A DAY OF JOY FOR PALESTINIANS

Last Israeli soldier leaves Gaza Strip

BY JEFFREY M. HERSHMAN, GAZA, PLOTTING—AFTER months of Palestinian protests and violent clashes with Israeli soldiers, the last Israeli soldier has left the Gaza Strip, marking the end of the Israeli occupation of the Gaza Strip.

The last Israeli soldier to leave the Gaza Strip was a member of the 8th Armored Division, a unit of the Israeli Defense Forces. The soldier was seen leaving the Gaza Strip on a military vehicle, with his arms raised in a gesture of triumph.

Poll victory gives Koizumi new mandate

By JEFFREY M. HERSHMAN, TOKYO—Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi's Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) won a decisive victory in the September 11 general election, securing a new mandate to lead Japan. The LDP won 308 of the 312 seats in the House of Representatives, a record for the party.

The LDP's victory was a surprise, as it was expected to lose to the opposition Democratic Party of Japan (DPJ). The DPJ had been leading in the polls for several weeks, but the LDP's strong performance in the election was a sign of a shift in public opinion.

The diagram illustrates the experimental setup for studying the effect of initial concentration on polymer blend morphology. It shows a cross-section of a polymer blend with a central layer of polymer solution. The central layer is labeled 'Polymer solution' and is divided into two regions: 'Initial concentration' and 'Final concentration'. The 'Initial concentration' region is further divided into 'Initial concentration' and 'Final concentration'. The 'Final concentration' region is further divided into 'Initial concentration' and 'Final concentration'. The diagram illustrates the process of polymer solution evaporation and the resulting morphology of the polymer blend.

1. The first step is to identify the main components of the system. This includes the hardware (CPU, memory, storage) and software (operating system, applications).

2. The second step is to determine the requirements for each component. This includes the performance, reliability, and security requirements.

3. The third step is to select the appropriate components based on the requirements. This involves comparing different options and choosing the best one.

4. The fourth step is to install and configure the components. This includes setting up the hardware and software, and ensuring they are working correctly.

5. The fifth step is to test the system. This involves running various tests to ensure the system is working as expected.

6. The sixth step is to document the system. This includes creating a user manual, a system architecture diagram, and other relevant documents.

7. The seventh step is to maintain the system. This includes monitoring the system for problems, updating software, and performing regular backups.

8. The eighth step is to upgrade the system. This involves adding new components or upgrading existing ones to improve performance.

9. The ninth step is to decommission the system. This involves safely removing the system from service and disposing of the hardware.

10. The tenth step is to evaluate the system. This involves reviewing the system's performance, reliability, and security to determine if it meets the requirements.

Right care for young teeth

By Roger Raga-Raga

HAVE YOUR CHILD VISIT YOUR DENTIST REGULARLY. A good dental care routine can help prevent cavities and other dental problems. It's also a good idea to teach your child good oral hygiene habits from an early age.

For the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, a child's first dental visit should occur by the age of 1. The dentist will examine the child's teeth and gums, and provide advice on proper oral hygiene. The dentist will also check for any signs of dental problems, such as cavities or gum disease.

Age one (1 year old)

At this age, the child's first dental visit should occur. The dentist will examine the child's teeth and gums, and provide advice on proper oral hygiene. The dentist will also check for any signs of dental problems, such as cavities or gum disease.

Age two (2 years old)

At this age, the child's second dental visit should occur. The dentist will examine the child's teeth and gums, and provide advice on proper oral hygiene. The dentist will also check for any signs of dental problems, such as cavities or gum disease.

At this age, the child's third dental visit should occur. The dentist will examine the child's teeth and gums, and provide advice on proper oral hygiene. The dentist will also check for any signs of dental problems, such as cavities or gum disease.

Age three (3 years old)

At this age, the child's fourth dental visit should occur. The dentist will examine the child's teeth and gums, and provide advice on proper oral hygiene. The dentist will also check for any signs of dental problems, such as cavities or gum disease.

Age four (4 years old)

At this age, the child's fifth dental visit should occur. The dentist will examine the child's teeth and gums, and provide advice on proper oral hygiene. The dentist will also check for any signs of dental problems, such as cavities or gum disease.

Age five (5 years old and above)

At this age, the child's sixth dental visit should occur. The dentist will examine the child's teeth and gums, and provide advice on proper oral hygiene. The dentist will also check for any signs of dental problems, such as cavities or gum disease.

Fluoride varnish

Fluoride varnish is a liquid fluoride treatment that is applied to the teeth. It helps to strengthen the teeth and prevent cavities. It is usually applied by a dentist or dental hygienist.

Fluoride varnish is usually applied once a year. It is a safe and effective way to help prevent cavities in children.
